Exposition Draws All-Time Record Crowd of 5,567

An all-time record throng of 5,567 persons flocked to the State Armory on Manor Avenue Friday night for the next to the last day of the 17th annual Kingston Lions Club Exposition and Home Show.

Joseph Scholier, president of the local service club, noted that last night's attendance shattered all previous records and opined that with tonight's closing program another record crowd was possible.

Miss Saugerties There

One of the many features tonight will be the personal appearance of Miss Jane Markovskiy, Miss Saugerties of 1964. The reigning Saugerties queen will be on hand at 7:30 p. m. to greet visitors to the home and exposition. Doors will open at 7 p. m. and the program continues through 10:30 p. m.

Crowd-pleasers at Friday's program included the interesting exhibit of the New York State Conservation Department "Hillside Display." Live and in natural quail, pheasants, crow and numerous others. Also shown are white, raccoons, porcupine and fox. The exhibit, which was featured at the Coliseum in New York for the annual Sportsman's Show measures 36 feet long, 10 feet high and is semi-circular. The rat-ta-ta of an air gun drew many visitors to the Ulster Foundry and Machine Corp. to observe the "Gun-Nailer" drive six and eight penny nails at a

Liquor Industry Will Challenge Control Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State's new liquor-control law, adopted Thursday at a turbulent special session of the Legislature, is in for a vigorous court challenge.

A source in the liquor industry said Friday the constitutionality of a key feature of the law—the section dealing with package-liquor prices—would be tested in the courts.

Gov. Rockefeller originally had called for outright repeal of the law that gives distillers the right to set minimum retail prices and requires the state to enforce them.

But to enice reluctant Republican lawmakers into supporting his plan, he was forced to compromise by adding safeguards to prevent cutthroat competition.

The safeguards include a requirement that the price distillers charge New York State wholesalers be at least as low as the price charged anywhere else in the nation.

The compromise also bars liquor sales "or less than cost" and prohibits price advertising. The law was rejected at the end of the regular legislative session last month but adopted, after long wrangling between the Republican governor and GOP lawmakers, at the two-day special session.

Rockefeller signed it at once. Besides ending price-fixing, the law eases the requirement that taverns sell food and eliminates the required minimum distances between package stores.

The liquor industry source, who asked that his name not be used, said it would challenge the price-control provision of the new law. He said the test probably would be made by individual distillers, rather than by a trade organization.

Viet Security Alerted For Plot Against Rusk

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese security forces braced today for a possible attempt on the life of Secretary of State Dean Rusk amid reports that Viet Cong suicide squads might make such a move.

The massive air-ground security net thrown around Rusk was tightened after a terrorist bomb was tossed into a military bus early today, wounding two U.S. servicemen.

Report Grenade Try

One intelligence report said a Communist suicide squad planned a grenade assassination attempt like that used to kill Thai Lap Thanh, Vietnamese governor general under the former French regime after the end of World War II.

Thanh and a French general were killed when a terrorist walked up to them, pulled the pins from two grenades and stood next to them until the grenades went off.

Police spotted a suspicious loiterer Friday night near a large electrical plant in the same area where the bus explosion occurred. They chased him and he got away, leaving behind an 11-pound high-explosive bomb. The bomb had not been armed and did not explode.

Plan Saigon Bombings

Police intelligence reports said the Communist Viet Cong planned a wave of bomb explosions in Saigon during the three-day Rusk visit. The bombs were to be directed at electrical transformers around the city, U.S. military installations and American vehicles.

Two of the transformers, both reportedly marked as targets by the Viet Cong, are within a half-block of the home of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, where Rusk is staying. All transformers in Saigon are under heavy guard.

Agents Follow Secretary

Five American security agents with submachine guns were traveling with Rusk wherever he went, along with crack Vietnamese security police and troops.

Rusk left Saigon for a tour of cities and installations north and east of Saigon today, accompanied by Lodge and the Vietnamese deputy premier, Nguyen Xuan Oanh. Rusk's motorcade drove 15 miles from Saigon to Bien Hoa. The highway was guarded by large army units and armed helicopters flying as escort.

Six Americans have been killed since Feb. 1 and more than 90 wounded by Viet Cong terror bombings. The two worst bombings, both in February, were at a baseball field where American servicemen

BAHRAIN, Persian Gulf (AP) — Groping through a desert sandstorm, a jetliner overshoot the airport at Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, Friday night and crashed into the Persian Gulf.

There were on signs of survivors among the 49 persons aboard, including 23 Americans. In Beirut, a spokesman for Middle East Airlines-Air Liban said all but one of the Americans apparently were employees or relatives of employees of the big Arabian American Oil Co. (ARAMCO) which has headquarters in Dhahran.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said helicopter crewmen saw no survivors in the wreckage of the Middle East Airlines-Air Liban Caravelle jet spotted today in shallow water about 10 miles off the Arabian coast.

The spokesman said the search for survivors was continuing and that more helicopters and small boats had been sent to the crash site. Only one wing of the plane jutting above the water line.

Divers set out from Dhahran to start an underwater search at the scene, but the Navy spokesman said, "It doesn't look like there can be any survivors."

BARRY GOLDWATER

Predicts Victory If He Captures Calif. Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater predicted today he will win the Republican presidential nomination on the first or second ballot if he captures California's primary and picks up the delegates he expects from the June state conventions.

Counts on 435 Delegates

Goldwater told the American Society of Newspaper Editors, "It seems that I can count on more than 435 delegates" in the Republican National Convention in July. This is "the most conservative count," he said.

"At any rate, I feel that the published reports of my being out of the race are a bit premature," the Arizona senator said in his speech for ASNE's annual meeting.

Three other Republicans prominent in the GOP's presidential nominating picture speak at the day session to the 500 editors—avowed noncandidates Richard M. Nixon and Gov. George Romney of Michigan and candidate Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine.

Democrat Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps director and considered to be among President Johnson's possible choices for his vice presidential running mate, addresses tonight's convention-closing banquet.

The delegates went to the White House for a reception Friday night and Johnson told them he wants his administration to "ignite a fire in the breast of this land" and to improve the lot of all humanity.

The President also plugged hard for his priority legislation—civil rights, the antipoverty program, health care for the elderly, a federal pay raise bill and immigration legislation.

Goldwater said his 435 claimed delegates "should be at least four times the number pledged to any other candidate."

Driver Is Jailed, In 12-Mile Chase

Because of the dogged determination of a Saugerties policeman, a Tannersville young man whose car was chased Friday night some 12 miles from that village into Kingston at speeds clocked up to 110 miles an hour, today found himself facing five traffic charges before three different judges.

Warning Shot Fired

Hero in the spirited chase which involved four police agencies and in which a warning shot was fired, was Officer Harry Vickery.

His mission began when he spotted a car operated at a high rate of speed by 22-year-old Bruce F. Curtis of Tannersville on Hill Street in Saugerties and ended minutes later when he snatched Curtis from a fence off an uptown alleyway when Curtis abandoned the car after it struck another vehicle at East St. James Street in Kingston. Miraculously, no one was injured.

Curtis was committed to the Ulster County Jail this morning when he was unable to post $125 bail on charges of speeding and passing a double line in the Town of Saugerties. Peace Justice Ernest E. Schirmer adjourned the cases to Tuesday.

Curtis faces further charges of being an unlicensed operator, before Police Justice G. Thomas Rea, Village of Saugerties, and leaving the scene of an accident and driving the wrong way in a one-way street, before City Judge Joseph D. Saccamano. He was not arraigned on those charges at Freeman press time.

Vickery Gives Account

Here is the account of the bizarre incident related by Vickery:

He spotted the car — later identified as a 1956 station wagon owned by a Tannersville resident — traveling north on Hill Street in the village about 2:30 a. m. He gave chase and radioed from his patrol car to Officer Ralph Mayone, who in turn radioed State Police, Sheriff's Department and Kingston Police for help.

Vickery, meanwhile pressed the chase south on Route 9W to Albany Avenue Extension at speeds up to 110 miles an hour. Patrol cars from the other law enforcement agencies, meanwhile, which had been traveling north on Rt. 9W and Albany Avenue, reversed their course to join in the chase.

Vickery said that when the

BEFORE OPERATION—President Charles de Gaulle, shown April 16 as he recorded a radio and television address to the people of France, underwent an operation in Paris for a prostate gland disease, and his condition was officially described as "very satisfactory." (AP Wirephoto)

Future Is Clouded By Gland Surgery

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle, who underwent prostate surgery Friday, was officially reported in very satisfactory condition today. A communique said he took several steps in his hospital room.

Very Satisfactory

De Gaulle was operated on for a prostate gland disorder.

The communique, published about 24 hours after the operation said, "Gen. de Gaulle spent a good night, took some nourishment and took several steps in his room. His condition is very satisfactory."

The communique, issued from the President's Elysee Palace, was signed by three doctors who performed the operation.

De Gaulle rested behind shuttered windows after Friday's surgery — veiled operation that left his political future in doubt.

Can De Gaulle at 73 recover and continue his role as Europe's dominant diplomatic voice?

Most Frenchmen reacted to that question with an enigmatic Gallic shrug.

Some Doubters

Government officials, obviously reflecting De Gaulle's fierce determination, were predicting he would be back behind his desk at the Elysee Palace within a month.

There were doubters, however. Typical man-in-the-street reaction was that such surgery would force a man of De Gaulle's age to temper his robust globe-trotting brand of personal world leadership.

Many pointed out that British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan retired from active political warfare following prostate surgery last September. Others noted that the British leader had been under heavy political fire because of the Profumo sex scandal. De Gaulle has no political reason to step down.

Curtain of Secrecy

De Gaulle, behind a curtain of secrecy, checked into the hospital Thursday night after watching his taped television address to the nation. An entire floor was cleared for his arrival. His wife, Yvonne, took a room nearby to be with him.

During De Gaulle's convalescence, Premier Georges Pompidou will take over the president's routine responsibilities, including presiding over Cabinet meetings. Even from a hospital bed, however, De Gaulle can be counted on to make France's major decisions.

Hearing Is Set May 1 for Lewd Letter to LBJ

NEW YORK (AP)—A hearing for Frank Bonuccelli, 59, of Newburgh, N.Y., on a charge of sending an obscene letter to President Johnson, was adjourned Friday until May 1 by U.S. Commissioner Earle N. Bishop.

Bonuccelli was arrested by postal authorities last Friday. The complaint against him was that last January 24 he mailed to President Johnson an envelope containing an obscene, lewd, lascivious and filthy letter.

Bonuccelli has been committed to Bellevue Hospital for observation, according to U.S. Atty. Michael W. Mitchell.

At Bonuccelli's arraignment last week, Mitchell told the commissioner that Bonuccelli had made oral admissions that he had prepared and mailed the letter. Mitchell said that Bonuccelli was unemployed, divorced and had been a mental patient in Middletown State Hospital.

The Kingston School District (Consolidated) Board of Education by unanimous vote passed a resolution last Dec. 5, nam-

Critical Stage Starts For Rail Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad labor talks entered a critical phase today as the White House continued efforts to prevent a strike which President Johnson says would virtually paralyze the nation.

Johnson is expected to decide on the basis of weekend developments whether a voluntary settlement between unions and management is possible in the five-year-old dispute.

Federal mediators continued intensive efforts to hammer out an agreement between negotiators for five unions and nearly 200 railroads after Johnson warned Friday that "a strike would almost paralyze our whole system."

One reliable source involved in government efforts to break the crisis had said earlier, "I think we are getting somewhere."

Johnson, who arranged for the talks during a 15-day strike postponement, said a rail walk-out would throw 7 million Americans out of work and cut the nation's production 10 to 15 per cent in a very short time as its effects spread through the economy.

The President, in remarks to a group of newspaper editors, said a strike would also pose

Trades Council Asks Land Redevelopment

The four county-affiliated Building and Construction Trades Council called today for restoration of "the full use of land areas to a useful purpose and to provide additional taxable properties through community redevelopment," and requested the Common Council to approve plans for Urban Renewal before it for consideration.

Five-Part Resolution

George E. Yerry Jr., president of the council, known officially as the Ulster, Sullivan, Delaware and Greene Counties Building and Construction Trades Council AFL-CIO — said action on the land redevelopment situation was taken at the regular monthly meeting of the Council this week. He said Council members unanimously approved a five part resolution in which they believed it "to be in the best interest of all the people of the City of Kingston."

The resolution said: "The Ulster, Sullivan, Delaware and Greene Counties Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL-CIO was in the forefront in advocating Urban Renewal in Kingston and in other communities within our four counties."

"This Building Trades Council arranged for the first public meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel with the firm of Raymond and May (planning) consultants to explain Urban Renewal."

"This Building Trades Council arranged a series of displays throughout the City of Kingston in order to inform the general public of desirability of Urban Renewal."

Best Interest of All

Therefore, the resolution continued, "This Building Trades Council as the representative of all of its affiliated trades such as bricklayers, carpenters, electrical workers, engineers, ironworkers, laborers, lathers, painters, plumbers, roofers, sheetmetal workers, steamfitters and teamsters, believe it to be in the interest of all the people of the City of Kingston to restore the full use of land areas to a useful purpose and to provide additional taxable properties through community redevelopment."

"Be it further resolved: that this Building Trades Council unanimously requests the members of the Common Council of the City of Kingston, individually and collectively, to approve the plans for Urban Renewal now before it for consideration."

The resolution was signed by Yerry and Stephan S. Gill, recording secretary.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODIE ISHMAEL

Sandra Simmons of Erie, Pa., is a champion wheelchair athlete. Struck down by polio at the age of nine, she learned that she would never walk again. Yet, through her strong faith and the guidance of her parents, she was determined to live an active and meaningful life.

During her first year of college, misfortune struck again. Her wheelchair turned over and she broke her leg. While recuperating at home, she enrolled at the Pennsylvania rehabilitation center and developed such skill that she competed first in the National, then last year the International Wheelchair Olympics. At the National in New York, she was first in the shot put and all swimming events; second in discus and bowling and third in javelin. At the International meet in England she again was first in shot put and swimming free style.

Sandra says, "With a great deal of practice and the willingness of God, I want to return to New York this June and try out for competition in Tokyo in November."

Your Life and Mine

DR. CLYDE H. SNELL

THIS CHANGING WORLD

A well-known nutritionist was hurrying through the streets with a sizeable package under his arm. Accosted by a friend who inquired as to the reason for his haste, he replied, "I finished the last chapter of a text book and I want to get it to the publisher before something else happens."

We live in a swiftly changing world. Knowledge in certain areas makes such rapid strides that what is new today will be antiquated tomorrow. In the process of up-dating a famous library a few years ago the head of the science department gave instructions to discard every book that was published ten or more years before. But today the span would be far less than that. It is indeed a problem to keep abreast of the times.

This, however, is not the whole story. For we need ever to keep in mind the fact that there are some things that do not change. Kindness, for example, is the same standard virtue that it was back in those ancient days when Jonathan befriended David. Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson once defined kindness as the "inability to remain at ease in the presence of another person who is ill at ease, the inability to remain comfortable in the presence of another who is uncomfortable, the inability to have peace of mind when one's neighbor is troubled." All the advances that have been made in our world have not altered in the least either our need for kindness or the tremendous impact, wherever it is present, upon the minds and hearts of human beings.

Sooner or later all of us get in spots where even a small kindness done to us by a thoughtful friend makes a mighty difference not only with the weight of the burden we carry but also with our outlook and perspective. Men never have found, and

English Bishop Advocates Tearing Down of Churches

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

LEEDS, England (AP)—Dr. Donald Coggan, archbishop of York, wants the Church of England to tear down some of its church buildings and use the money for missionary and welfare work at home and abroad.

Dr. Coggan said this could be done in many places, especially in some of the country villages where the churches are half empty because the bulk of the congregation has moved to the cities.

"It is wholly wrong," Dr. Coggan told a church congress here, "to spend money heating and maintaining up to five churches in village communities, half of which had moved away into the cities."

"The money should be spent on the evangelizing of England, or, more important, on the people overseas who are crying out for the gospel."

"I have noted that some villages have a parish priest and two or three churches, and a congregation only large enough to fill one of them. This represents a shameful waste of manpower and buildings."

"They should join together, pull down the buildings and move to the suburbs, sending the money saved to Africa, India and the Philippines."

Dr. Coggan also urged his Church to do more for the welfare of foreign students who come here to study at universities.

"Many of them come from Christian backgrounds and it is up to us to see that they do not

English Bishop Advocates Tearing Down of Churches

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

LEEDS, England (AP)—Dr. Donald Coggan, archbishop of York, wants the Church of England to tear down some of its church buildings and use the money for missionary and welfare work at home and abroad.

Dr. Coggan said this could be done in many places, especially in some of the country villages where the churches are half empty because the bulk of the congregation has moved to the cities.

"It is wholly wrong," Dr. Coggan told a church congress here, "to spend money heating and maintaining up to five churches in village communities, half of which had moved away into the cities."

"The money should be spent on the evangelizing of England, or, more important, on the people overseas who are crying out for the gospel."

"I have noted that some villages have a parish priest and two or three churches, and a congregation only large enough to fill one of them. This represents a shameful waste of manpower and buildings."

"They should join together, pull down the buildings and move to the suburbs, sending the money saved to Africa, India and the Philippines."

Dr. Coggan also urged his Church to do more for the welfare of foreign students who come here to study at universities.

"Many of them come from Christian backgrounds and it is up to us to see that they do not

Your Life and Mine

DR. CLYDE H. SNELL

THIS CHANGING WORLD

A well-known nutritionist was hurrying through the streets with a sizeable package under his arm. Accosted by a friend who inquired as to the reason for his haste, he replied: "I finished the last chapter of a textbook and I want to get it to the publisher before something else happens."

We live in a swiftly changing world. Knowledge in certain areas makes such rapid strides that what is new today will be antiquated tomorrow. In the process of up-dating a famous library a few years ago the head of the science department gave instructions to discard every book that was published ten or more years before. But today the span would be far less than that. It is indeed a problem to keep abreast of the times.

This, however, is not the whole story. For we need ever keep in mind the fact that there are some things that do not change. Kindness, for example, is the same standard virtue that it was back in those ancient days when Jonathan befriended David. Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson once defined kindness as the "inability to remain at ease in the presence of another person who is ill at ease, the inability to remain comfortable in the presence of another who is uncomfortable, the inability to have peace of mind when one's neighbor is troubled." All the advances that have been made in our world have not altered in the least either our need for kindness or the tremendous impact, wherever it is present, upon the minds and hearts of human beings.

Sooner or later all of us get in spots where even a small kindness done to up by a thoughtful friend makes a mighty difference not only with the weight of the burden we carry but also with our outlook and perspective. Men never have found, and

Mission Speaker Slated on Sunday At Bethel Church

The Rev. Paul Berg five years a missionary to Japan will be the featured speaker at Bethel Assembly of God, 11 Esopus Avenue Sunday 11 a. m. according to a report by pastor, the Rev. Robert R. Vinson.

After graduating from Eastern Bible Institute, Green Lane, Pennsylvania, the Rev. Mr. Berg pastored a church in Asheville, N. C. He was then given an appointment as a missionary to Japan for five years. Upon his return from Japan his success in promotion of missions led to his being appointed to foreign missions promotion here in the United States.

He recently has been ap-never will, any substitute for a spirit that does not close its eyes to the problems of others or evade the responsibility of lending, gladly and willingly, a helping hand.

Courage, also, never out-of-date. Courage has been defined as fear that has said its prayers. It sometimes manifests itself as conviction with its sleeves rolled up; or as faith that refuses to give up because the going is hard.

Life for most of us is not easy. It never was meant to be. It takes courage to face the struggle, to stand up to God's help against temptation. It takes courage to bear up bravely when sorrow comes to alter completely one's accustomed way of life. Our changing world does not alter the importance of courage — or provide us with any semblance of a substitute for it.

"Life is mostly froth and bubble; Two things stand like stone: Kindness in another's trouble, Courage in your own."

Chaplains Meet In Chicago for 39th Convention

One of the most significant convocations of religious leaders will take place in May when the Military Chaplains Association of the U.S.A. holds its 39th annual convention in Chicago.

Unity—Its Problems and Promises will be the theme of the convention, May 19-21, when military and civilian chaplains of the three major faiths gather with lay specialists at the Sherman House in Chicago.

The Military Chaplains Association is an organization which represents 20,000 Jewish, Roman Catholic and Protestant chaplains now serving, or who formerly served, in the U. S. Armed Forces and Veterans Administration.

The convention's theme of unity will be explored in depth from different points of view; on the international scene, in the world of religion, in the affairs of state and in the armed forces.

Among the national and international experts who will address the chaplains are Carl Rowan, director, U. S. Information Agency; Philip Klutznick, former U.S. representative to the United Nations; and Professor Hans J. Morgenthau, renowned University of Chicago professor, author and consultant on the nation's foreign policies.

pointed director of Hidden Valley Camp, Whiteport. This is a youth camp featuring recreation as well as Spiritual activities for youth groups on a year round basis.

The pastor invites the public to attend the service.

KENNEDY MEMORIALS

News of projected memorials to President Kennedy suggests the extent to which his memory is enshrined in the hearts of men in other nations as well as our own. The British plan is notable among those thus far announced.

It is most appropriate that a simple monument, with steps leading to the stone base of a column, will be erected in the late president's honor on an acre set aside at Runnymede. On that hallowed ground where Magna Carta was signed more than seven centuries ago, the monument will commemorate an American who contributed much to the cause of human freedom and dignity.

The British also plan to establish in President Kennedy's name a kind of living memorial — an arrangement whereby young men and women from that country will be enabled to study at Harvard, Radcliffe and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In time, many of these young scholars also will doubtless use the facilities of the Kennedy Memorial Library to be built on the Harvard campus.

Among other interesting memorials is the John F. Kennedy statue which the Mexican government will erect in the Chamizal sector of El Paso, recently ceded to Mexico.

It is good to see our late president becoming a symbol of hope for people in many lands. All Americans, regardless of their partisan views, can take great pride in that.

KHRUSHCHEV HUMOR

Nikita Khrushchev fancies himself as a farm expert. He nevertheless envies U.S. farm techniques and does not hesitate to say so, even though he has not taken back that "we will bury you" prediction.

The other day in Hungary, Khrushchev compared Russian and U. S. methods of training farmers. His illustration was not only frank but funny. In the United States, he said, "they study and work at the same time. Under the Socialist way, the students study and let the farmers do the work. And when the student finally gets to a farm, he is afraid of the tractors and the cows."

Maybe not as good as Bob Hope — but not bad.

WE'RE GREAT SNACKERS

The snack, as distinguished from the meal, is a power in the land. The figures on rising sales of pretzels, crackers, popcorn, pickles and the like suggest that America is rapidly becoming a nation of snackers.

Consider popcorn, for example. In 1961, some 295 million pounds of this comestible were gobbled by Americans. Last year the total was 360 million pounds. We chomped 438 million dollars worth of nuts in 1961, and 467 millions worth the next year. Potato chip consumption (observed benevolently, be it noted, by the Potato Chip Institute International) went up from 519-million-dollar volume in 1960 to 581 million dollars worth by 1962.

Those are staple items. The variety of more or less exotic additions to the snack family is astonishing. Taken together, they account for several billion dollars of the national income. Anyone care to guess how much of that goes down the collective hatch in front of 100 million television sets, give or take a few thousand, between supper time and the end of the late, late show?

ATTACKS ON THE PRESS

It is too pat a generalization to suggest, as some observers do, that Dixie is broadening the scope of its opposition to freedom. But at least in three states of the Deep South — Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana — freedom of the press has now in a sense been added to the controversial issues.

A recent news summary disclosed that there are 17 current libel actions by residents of those states against the press. A total of 288 million dollars is being sought, mostly over articles about racial violence.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Denver Post were among the defendants, as are news-

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

"I SAW A MAN WHO WASN'T THERE"

A long time ago the political pros in this country thought they had a sure-fire formula for picking a Presidential candidate. The formula was to let the opinionated aspirants talk themselves into irreconcilable positions, and then, after it was apparent that nobody with an idea in his head could get the nomination, to meet in the legendary smoke-filled room and compromise on a relative nonentity.

This formula in due course went with the wind. But this year it is being revived in a more subtle guise. The idea of running as a non-candidate in primaries has been substituted for the smoke-filled room. Characters with ideas to express go into primaries in New Hampshire and Oregon and talk their heads off. They arouse partisan feelings, and they say things that can be shot down by the opposition. Not being able to pose as all things to all men, they wind up with a mere ten, fifteen or twenty per cent of the vote. Meanwhile, the non-candidates, who are all things to all men by virtue of being no single thing to any single man, benefit. The "protest" vote moves in their direction.

It's most unfair, but it's evidently a new fact of life. Another new fact of life is that it is better to move conspicuously around the world than it is to move conspicuously around the U. S. Henry Cabot Lodge in South Vietnam gives prospective voters the idea that he is learning things affecting the safety of the U. S. right out there on the firing line. Richard Nixon, dipping into Saigon or returning from an inspection of the Berlin Wall, builds the same sort of image. So when James Burnham, writing from Arizona, laments that Barry Goldwater has fumbled an opportunity by campaigning in Fresno, Calif., and Portland, Ore. instead of sitting in on meetings of SEATO in the Philippines or conversing with Gomulka in Warsaw, it is obvious that he makes practical, as against idealistic, sense. I only wish that H. L. Menckner were alive to comment on this business of stopping up one's political popularity in accordance with the square of the distance between Oregon, where the voters live, and Timbuctoo, where a traveling candidate, or non-candidate, might appear wise by virtue of the fact that if he opened his mouth nobody would understand a word he had to say.

Another feature of this strange era of non-candidates and men who get down to the precinct level in New Hampshire and Oregon by making appearances in Saigon or Uruguay is the non-manager of the non-campaigner. This would seem to account for the silence of that most effective Republican National Committee chairman of the past decade, Leonard Wood Hall, of Oyster Bay, New York. Mr. Hall has been beckoned at by real, or bona fide, candidates, namely the Messrs. Goldwater and Rockefeller. His friends say that he could have been a Goldwater man or a Rockefeller man if there hadn't been so many appealing non-candidates around. Mr. Hall liked George Romney — but Romney chose to stay home in Lansing, Mich., rather than take to the hustings by visiting Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi. He liked Bill Scranton, but Scranton refused to set off to Cape Town, Africa, to campaign against segregation in Mississippi. Although Mr. Hall is obviously in search of some sort of effective non-candidate to back, such extremes of non-candidacy seemed to him a little bit too much.

Seriously speaking, as some of Len Hall's friends do speak, it would seem obvious that the chairman of the past decade is waiting for Richard Nixon to clarify his position, or non-position, as a figure around whom perplexed Republicans may finally decide to rally. Len Hall is a loyal man — and every time he has looked in the direction of Goldwater, Rockefeller, Romney or Scranton the pumbra of Nixon has tended to obscure the view. When Harold Stassen was trying to dump Nixon for Vice President, Len Hall said, "I think Dick Nixon is a great American. A great American is a strong candidate."

Wanna bet that Nixon won't get the Hall nod or at least a non-nod that is equivalent to a nod? (Copyright, 1964, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The Mature Parent Have You Abandoned Her?

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:
Nine years ago this June our only daughter married a man we had never met and left with him for the coast to live. In all this time she has let our birthdays and holidays go by without so much as a greeting card. It is only through her brother that we know she has two children. Now her father's eyesight is failing and I can see how this trouble with our daughter is preying on his mind. Perhaps it is my fault and I mistreated her in some way. If you know of any way I could make it right, tell me.

ANSWER: Could you look at the notion that she feels she has mistreated you? Parents are not the only people who can feel ashamed of the mean things they've done. Children can, too.

A daughter who knows she hurt her parents by excluding them from any share in her marriage could conceivably feel so ashamed of wounding them that she would have to continue to hide from them. She might try to avoid feeling her painful remorse by telling herself that they alone were responsible for her estrangement from them. For this is how some of us behave when we can't stand the thought of some meanness we have inflicted on another person.

We have to try to persuade our meanness to him seem reasonable and make up by exaggerating all his shortcomings. But all the time, underneath our insistent criticism is shame of our own meanness.

What I am saying is that this daughter of yours whom distance makes appear so independent and self-sufficient may be in deeper need of your comfort than you and her father are in need of hers. Of course, if you insist on concentrating on the awfulness of the possible hurts you inflicted on her, you won't have any attention left to look at the notion that she feels just as sad at the hurts she has given you. You won't be able to think, "Why sure, now I come to think of it, imagining that I am the only person who can feel regret for the mistakes I have made is pretty pigish." Maybe I better start crediting the lost child of ours with the same capacity to change and grow that I have — and act on faith in it.

papers in Atlanta, Birmingham and New Orleans. Suits against the New York Times include the one recently remanded by the U.S. Supreme Court. Broadcasting stations and magazines also have been sued.

Plaintiffs include the Mississippi Highway Patrol through its director, T. B. Birdsong; former Gen. Edwin A. Walker; and the former mayor of Birmingham, Arthur H. Hanes, and his police commissioner. Birdsong's suits alone ask 276 millions, each of his 275 patrolmen being a co-plaintiff.

Does this add up to an attack on freedom of the press? Perhaps not. But all who value that freedom can be grateful for the Supreme Court's ruling that the press must be given wide latitude in reporting and commenting on the activities of public servants. In a society where this is not so, where criticism can be muffled or even stifled, there is not adequate check on the power of men in office.

Washington News

BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Now comes a man to say that the picture of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge as vice presidential nominee who afternoon-napped his way through the 1960 campaign is completely false.

He is Vincent O'Brien, presently news editor of the Lynn (Mass.) Item, who was Lodge's press secretary in that campaign. He traveled with the candidate for 40,000 miles through 30 states.

Reading constant comment from politicians and others on Lodge's reported midday snoozing, O'Brien, his patience evaporated speaks up:

"I hate to see the history of the 1960 campaign distorted. The fact of the matter is that Lodge did not sleep in the afternoons."

Yet it is true, he says, that the ambassador did not pursue an endless round of campaign stops from dawn to midnight. He was, in fact, unavailable during part of every working day.

"He thought it was a lot of nonsense to spend every waking hour shaking hands. To him, Nixon and Kennedy and Johnson were frenetic in their campaigning."

"He decided at the beginning that he would campaign mornings and afternoons, mornings and evenings, afternoons and evenings, but never all three on a given day."

HOW DID LODGE spend his "free time" during the day?

According to O'Brien, he used it steadily for talks with his staff, for strategy planning, for preparation of major speeches. Adds his former press aide:

"He took very little time off. I still have in hand his daily campaign schedules — hour by hour. Anybody who would read them over could see he did not have much time for napping."

Lodge's defender does not say that the candidate never stretched out on a bed in working hours.

"Sure there were times when he would hit a town at 5:30, take a shower, lie down for a bit, have a steak and then be ready to go for the evening rally."

"But the two-hour nap in the middle of the afternoon is a myth."

O'BRIEN SAYS MOST of the "specific cases" which purport to document Lodge's leisurely campaigning never occurred as now reported.

There is one about his supposedly ducking out on five speaking engagements to take his wife, Emily, for a look at Niagara Falls.

O'Brien's version: The ambassador arrived in Niagara Falls at 4:30 p. m. after a long swing that began in Atlantic City and took him through several upstate New York towns. He showered and dined, had some photographs taken, then went to the evening meeting. Only after that, late in the evening, did Lodge say:

"Let's unwind a bit. Let's take a look at the falls."

THE 1960 NOMINEE IS ALSO SUPPOSED to have canceled five of seven appearances in Kansas City. A visitor claims he barged into his hotel suite to find Lodge "lolling in a chair in his bathrobe, watching a movie on television." Says O'Brien:

"Frankly, I don't think he has ever seen a movie on television. I don't think he ever watched anything but the news and the daily debates of 1960. As for canceling out, the fact is we had only one scheduled stop in Kansas City and we kept it."

O'Brien thinks most of the "nap stories" arise from the irritation of local leaders who were frustrated in their attempts to "overschedule" Lodge when he hit their territory. He believes, too, that the "myth of the afternoon nap" has now spread like a contagion to politicians who had not the slightest evidence of how Henry Cabot Lodge spent his afternoons when he was not with them.

KENNEDY MEMORIALS

News of projected memorials to President Kennedy suggests the extent to which his memory is enshrined in the hearts of men in other nations as well as our own. The British plan is notable among those thus far announced.

It is most appropriate that a simple monument, with steps leading to the stone base of a column, will be erected in the late president's honor on an acre set aside at Runnymede. On that hallowed ground where Magna Carta was signed more than seven centuries ago, the monument will commemorate an American who contributed much to the cause of human freedom and dignity.

The British also plan to establish in President Kennedy's name a kind of living memorial — an arrangement whereby young men and women from that country will be enabled to study at Harvard, Radcliffe and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In time, many of these young scholars also will doubtless use the facilities of the Kennedy Memorial Library to be built on the Harvard campus.

Among other interesting memorials is the John F. Kennedy statue which the Mexican government will erect in the Chamizal sector of El Paso, recently ceded to Mexico.

It is good to see our late president becoming a symbol of hope for people in many lands. All Americans, regardless of their partisan views, can take great pride in that.

KHRUSHCHEV HUMOR

Nikita Khrushchev fancies himself as a farm expert. He nevertheless envies U.S. farm techniques and does not hesitate to say so, even though he has not taken back that "we will bury you" prediction.

The other day in Hungary, Khrushchev compared Russian and U. S. methods of training farmers. His illustration was not only frank but funny. In the United States, he said, "they study and work at the same time. Under the Socialist way, the students study and let the farmers do the work. And when the student finally gets to a farm, he is afraid of the tractors and the cows."

Maybe not as good as Bob Hope — but not bad.

WE'RE GREAT SNACKERS

The snack, as distinguished from the meal, is a power in the land. The figures on rising sales of pretzels, crackers, popcorn, pickles and the like suggest that America is rapidly becoming a nation of snackers.

Consider popcorn, for example. In 1961, some 295 million pounds of this comestible were gobbled by Americans. Last year the total was 360 million pounds. We chomped 438 million dollars worth of nuts in 1961, and 467 millions worth the next year. Potato chip consumption (observed benevolently, be it noted, by the Potato Chip Institute International) went up from 519-million-dollar volume in 1960 to 581 million dollars worth by 1962.

Those are staple items. The variety of more or less exotic additions to the snack family is astonishing. Taken together, they account for several billion dollars of the national income. Anyone care to guess how much of that goes down the collective hatch in front of 100 million television sets, give or take a few thousand, between supper time and the end of the late, late show?

ATTACKS ON THE PRESS

It is too pat a generalization to suggest, as some observers do, that Dixie is broadening the scope of its opposition to freedom. But at least in three states of the Deep South — Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana — freedom of the press has now in a sense been added to the controversial issues.

A recent news summary disclosed that there are 17 current libel actions by residents of those states against the press. A total of 288 million dollars is being sought, mostly over articles about racial violence.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Denver Post were among the defendants, as are news-

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

"I SAW A MAN WHO WASN'T THERE"

A long time ago the political pros in this country thought they had a sure-fire formula for picking a Presidential candidate. The formula was to let the opinionated aspirants talk themselves into irreconcilable positions, and then, after it was apparent that nobody with an idea in his head could get the nomination, to meet in the legendary smoke-filled room and compromise on a relative nonentity.

This formula in due course went with the wind. But this year it is being revived in a more subtle guise. The idea of running as a non-candidate in primaries has been substituted for the smoke-filled room. Characters with ideas to express go into primaries in New Hampshire and Oregon and talk their heads off. They arouse partisan feelings, and they say things that can be shot down by the opposition. Not being able to pose as all things to all men, they wind up with a mere ten, fifteen or twenty per cent of the vote. Meanwhile, the non-candidates, who are all things to all men by virtue of being no single thing to any single man, benefit. The "protest" vote moves in their direction.

It's most unfair, but it's evidently a new fact of life. Another new fact of life is that it is better to move conspicuously around the world than it is to move conspicuously around the U. S. Henry Cabot Lodge in South Vietnam gives prospective voters the idea that he is learning things affecting the safety of the U. S. right out there on the firing line. Richard Nixon, dipping into Saigon and returning from an inspection of the Berlin Wall, builds the same sort of image. So, when James Burnham, writing from Arizona, laments that Barry Goldwater has fumbled an opportunity by campaigning in Fresno, Calif., and Portland, Ore., instead of sitting in on meetings of SEATO in the Philippines or conversing with Gomulka in Warsaw, it is obvious that he makes practical, as against idealistic, sense. I only wish that H. L. Menchen were alive to comment on this business of stepping up one's political popularity in accordance with the square of the distance between Oregon, where the voters live, and Timbuctoo, where a traveling candidate, or non-candidate, might appear wise by virtue of the fact that if he opened his mouth nobody would understand a word he had to say.

Another feature of this strange era of non-candidates and men who get down to the precinct level in New Hampshire and Oregon by making appearances in Saigon or Uruguay is the non-manager of the non-campaigner. This would seem to account for the silence of that most effective Republican National Committee chairman of the past decade, Leonard Wood Hall, of Oyster Bay, New York. Mr. Hall has been beckoned at by real, or bona fide, candidates, namely the Messrs. Goldwater and Rockefeller. His friends say that he could have been a Goldwater man or a Rockefeller man if he hadn't been so busy with his non-candidates around. Mr. Hall liked George Romney — but Romney chose to stay home in Lansing, Mich., rather than take to the hustings by visiting Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi. He liked Bill Scranton, but Scranton refused to set off to Cape Town, Africa, to campaign against segregation in Mississippi. Although Mr. Hall is obviously in search of some sort of effective non-candidate to back, such extremes of non-candidate seemed to him a little bit too much.

Seriously speaking, as some of Len Hall's friends do speak, it would seem obvious that the most effective Republican National Committee chairman of the past decade is waiting for Richard Nixon to clarify his position, or non-position, as a figure around whom perplexed Republicans may finally decide to rally. Len Hall is a loyal man — and every time he has looked in the direction of Goldwater, Rockefeller, Romney or Scranton the penumbra of Nixon has tended to obscure the view. When Harold Stassen was trying to dump Nixon for Vice President, Len Hall said, "I think Dick Nixon is a great American. A great American is a strong candidate."

Wanna bet that Nixon won't get the Hall nod or at least a non-nod that is equivalent to a nod? (Copyright, 1964, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The Mature Parent Have You Abandoned Her?

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:
Nine years ago this June our only daughter married a man we had never met and left with him for the coast to live. In all this time she has let our birthdays and holidays go by without so much as a greeting. It is only through her brother that we know she has two children. Now her father's eyesight is failing and I can see how this trouble with our daughter is preying on his mind. Perhaps it was my fault and I mistreated her in some way. If you know of any way I could make it right, tell me.

ANSWER: Could you look at the notion that she feels she has mistreated you? Parents are not the only people who can feel ashamed of the mean things they've done. Children can, too.

A daughter who knows she hurt her parents by excluding them from any share in her marriage could conceivably feel so ashamed of wounding them that she would have to continue to hide from them. She might try to avoid feeling her painful remorse by telling herself that they alone were responsible for her estrangement from them. For this is how some of us behave when we can't stand the thought of some meanness we have inflicted on another person.

We have to try and make our meanness to him seem reasonable and merited by exaggerating all his shortcomings. But all the time, underneath our insistent criticism is shame of our own meanness.

What I am saying is that this daughter of yours whom distance makes appear so independent and self-sufficient may be in deeper need of your comfort than you and her father are in need of hers.

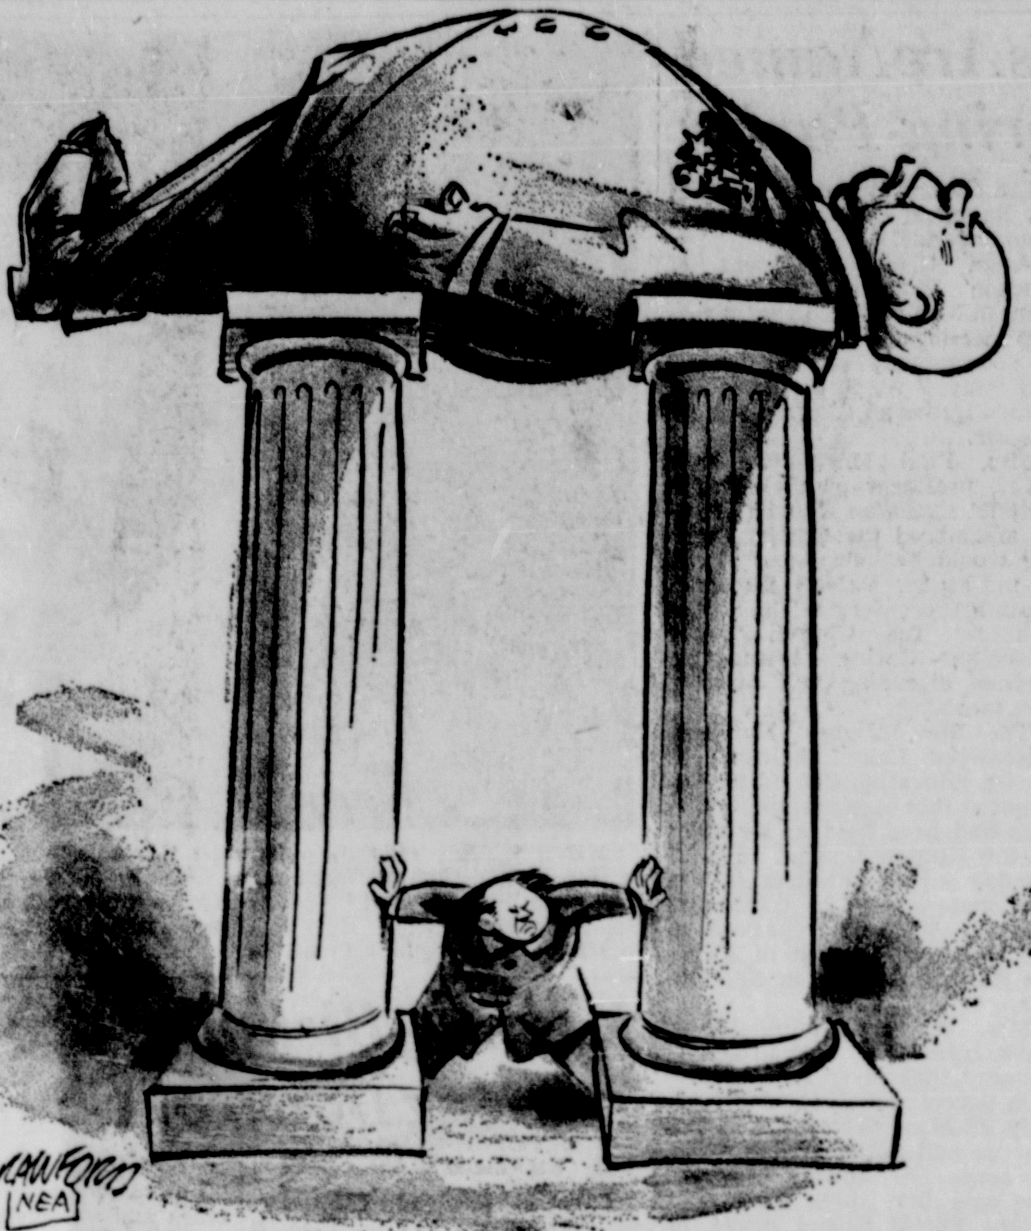

Of course, if you insist on concentrating on the awfulness of the possible hurts you inflicted on her, you won't have any attention left to look at the notion that she feels just as sad at the hurts she has given you. You won't be able to think, "Why sure, now I come to think of it, imagining that I am the only person who can feel regret for the mistakes I have made is pretty piggyish. Maybe I better start crediting the lost child of ours with the same capacity to change and grow that I have — and act on faith in it."

papers in Atlanta, Birmingham and New Orleans. Suits against the New York Times include the one recently remanded by the U.S. Supreme Court. Broadcasting stations and magazines also have been sued.

Plaintiffs include the Mississippi Highway Patrol through its director, T. B. Birdsong; former Gen. Edwin A. Walker; and the former mayor of Birmingham, Arthur H. Hanes, and his police commissioner. Birdsong's suits alone ask 276 millions, each of his 275 patrolmen being a co-plaintiff.

Does this add up to an attack on freedom of the press? Perhaps not. But all who value that freedom can be grateful for the Supreme Court's ruling that the press must be given wide latitude in reporting and commenting on the activities of public servants. In a society where this is not so, where criticism can be muffled or even stifled, there is not adequate check on the power of men in office.

Washington News

BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Now comes a man to say that the picture of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge as vice presidential nominee who after noon-napped his way through the 1960 campaign is completely false.

He is Vincent O'Brien, presently news editor of the Lynn (Mass.) Item, who was Lodge's press secretary in that campaign. He traveled with the candidate for 40,000 miles through 30 states.

Reading constant comment from politicians and others on Lodge's reported midday snoozing, O'Brien, his patience evaporated, speaks up:

"I hate to see the history of the 1960 campaign distorted. The fact of the matter is that Lodge did not sleep in the afternoon."

Yet it is true, he says, that the ambassador did not pursue an endless round of campaign stops from dawn to midnight. He was, in fact, unavailable during part of every working day. "He thought it was a lot of nonsense to spend every waking hour shaking hands. To him, Nixon and Kennedy and Johnson were frenetic in their campaigning."

"He decided at the beginning that he would campaign mornings and afternoons, mornings and evenings — afternoons and evenings, but never all three on a given day."

HOW DID LODGE spend his "free time" during the day?

According to O'Brien, he used it steadily for talks with his staff, for strategy planning, for preparation of major speeches. Adds his former press aide: "He took very little time off. I still have in hand his daily campaign schedules hour by hour. Anybody who would read them over could see he did not have much time for napping."

Lodge's defender does not say that the candidate never stretched out on a bed in working hours.

"Sure there were times when he would hit a town at 5:30, take a shower, lie down for a bit, have a steak and then be ready to go for the evening rally."

"But the two-hour nap in the middle of the afternoon is a myth."

O'BRIEN SAYS MOST of the "specific cases" which purport to document Lodge's leisurely campaigning never occurred as now reported.

There is one about his supposedly ducking out on five speaking engagements to take his wife, Emily, for a look at Niagara Falls.

O'Brien's version: The ambassador arrived in Niagara Falls at 4:30 p. m. after a long swing that began in Atlantic City and took him through several upstate New York towns. He showered and dined, had some photographs taken, then went to the evening meeting. Only after that, late in the evening, did Lodge say:

"Let's unwind a bit. Let's take a look at the falls."

THE 1960 NOMINEE IS ALSO SUPPOSED to have canceled five of seven appearances in Kansas City. A visitor claims he barged into his hotel suite to find Lodge "lolling in a chair in his bathrobe, watching a movie on television." Says O'Brien: "Frankly, I don't think he has ever seen a movie on television. I don't think he ever watched anything but the news and the big debates of 1960. As for canceling out, the fact is we had only one scheduled stop in Kansas City and we kept it."

O'Brien thinks most of the "nap stories" arise from the irritation of local leaders who were frustrated in their attempts to "overschedule" Lodge when he hit their territory. He believes, too, that the "myth of the afternoon nap" has now spread like a contagion to politicians who had not the slightest evidence of how Henry Cabot Lodge spent his afternoons when he was not with them.

Gains Are Noted In Cancer Drive

Encouraging gains in the 1964 American Cancer Society Crusade in Ulster County were noted today by the Society's Ulster County Unit, 400 Broadway.

Lawrence A. Quilty, county campaign chairman, and Augustus S. Brinnier, vice-chairman, said the Ulster unit marked the halfway point in this year's educational and fund-raising drive Wednesday.

Booth At Lions Show

An ACS booth, arranged by the Ulster unit, is attracting considerable attention at the 17th annual Lions Club Industrial Exposition and Home Show at the State Armory, Manor Avenue. Volunteer workers are in attendance each night distributing life-saving literature.

Since the fund-raising drive started on April 1, volunteer workers have distributed thousands of pieces of the literature as an important phase of the ACS educational and fund-raising Crusade. The leaflets pose and then answer five questions: 1 — Are we getting anywhere against cancer? 2 — What signs or symptoms may mean cancer? 3 — What kind of cancer is mounting most rapidly? 4 — What can you do to help protect yourself against cancer? 5 — What kinds of cancer kill most Americans?

County campaign leaders, Kingston city ward chairmen, and town chairmen and captains are diligently canvassing their specific areas, appealing to residents to make generous contributions to assure success in this year's worthwhile crusade.

May Top All Records

Chairman Quilty said the committee is hopeful that continued development of a trend in the county will "top all existing Crusade records."

"If we can maintain, or improve this rate of increase until the end of the 1964 Crusade," he said, "we will have accomplished our immediate objective: More people than ever before will have been informed on how to help protect themselves and their families from death from cancer; and more greatly-needed dollars than ever before will have been raised in our county for programs of research, education and service."

Quilty and Brinnier, and Aaron E. Klein, city crusade chairmen, urged that ACS volunteers and the community at large not relax efforts in reaching the Crusade goals. "This is no time to rest on our laurels," the three campaign leaders said. "Rather, we should step up our work and wind up the second half of the Crusade with an increase over the first half."

Some returns have been made by volunteer solicitors. Figures showing the receipts to date probably will be available to the public soon, it was said.

Chairman Quilty pointed out that contributions made by the people in Ulster County help not only local cancer control programs but also the Society's national cancer research program. "Funds donated to the Cancer Society," the chairman said, "have helped score many successes in recent years, including the development of the 'Pap' smear to detect early uterine cancer and in establishing the link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. Much more needs to be done, however, and more money can help do it."

Concluding his appeal for a strong closing of the Crusade, the chairman added, "If anyone has been overlooked or was unable to contribute when the ACS volunteer called, please send your check or money order to the American Cancer Society, 400 Broadway, Kingston. If you haven't received your life-saving literature on the Seven Danger Signals of cancer and information on the annual health check-up, please ask for it."

Gains Are Noted In Cancer Drive

Encouraging gains in the 1964 American Cancer Society Crusade in Ulster County were noted today by the Society's Ulster County Unit, 400 Broadway.

Lawrence A. Quilty, county campaign chairman, and Augustus S. Brinnier, vice-chairman, said the Ulster unit marked the halfway point in this year's educational and fund-raising drive Wednesday.

Booth At Lions Show

An ACS booth, arranged by the Ulster unit, is attracting considerable attention at the 17th annual Lions Club Industrial Exposition and Home Show at the State Armory, Manor Avenue. Volunteer workers are in attendance each night distributing life-saving literature.

Since the fund-raising drive started on April 1, volunteer workers have distributed thousands of pieces of the literature as an important phase of the ACS educational and fund-raising Crusade. The leaflets pose and then answer five questions: 1 — Are we getting anywhere against cancer? 2 — What signs or symptoms may mean cancer? 3 — What kind of cancer is mounting most rapidly? 4 — What can you do to help protect yourself against cancer? 5 — What kinds of cancer kill most Americans?

County campaign leaders, Kingston city ward chairmen, and town chairmen and captains are diligently canvassing their specific areas, appealing to residents to make generous contributions to assure success in this year's worthwhile crusade.

May Top All Records

Chairman Quilty said the committee is hopeful that continued development of a trend in the county will "top all existing Crusade records."

"If we can maintain, or improve this rate of increase until the end of the 1964 Crusade," he said, "we will have accomplished our immediate objective. More people than ever before will have been informed on how to help protect themselves and their families from death from cancer; and more greatly-needed dollars than ever before will have been raised in our county for programs of research, education and service."

Quilty and Brinnier, and Aaron E. Klein, city crusade chairman, urged that ACS volunteers and the community at large not relax efforts in reaching the Crusade goals. "This is no time to rest on our laurels," the three campaign leaders said. "Rather, we should step up our work and wind up the second half of the Crusade with an increase over the first half."

Some returns have been made by volunteer solicitors. Figures showing the receipts to date probably will be available to the public soon, it was said.

Chairman Quilty pointed out that contributions made by the people in Ulster County help not only local cancer control programs but also the Society's national cancer research program. "Funds donated to the Cancer Society," the chairman said, "have helped score many successes in recent years, including the development of the 'Pap' smear to detect early uterine cancer and in establishing the link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. Much more needs to be done, however, and more money can help do it."

Concluding his appeal for a strong closing of the Crusade, the chairman added, "If anyone has been overlooked or was unable to contribute when the ACS volunteer called, please send your check or money order to the American Cancer Society, 400 Broadway, Kingston. If you haven't received your life-saving literature on the Seven Danger Signals of cancer and information on the annual health check-up, please ask for it."

Business & Professional Club of YWCA

Members of the B&P Club of the YWCA were privileged to hear E. Robert Johnson, executive director of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Johnson said that much of the work of the Association is done by the many volunteers who give so freely of their time. The sale of Christmas seals is their only source of income, 82 per cent of which remains in Ulster County, 12 per cent goes to the National Association and 6 per cent to the State. He said that while TB is greatly reduced it still exists and respiratory diseases such as chronic Bronchitis and Asthma show marked increase. The goal of the TB and Health Association is to keep people informed.

During the business session Helen Gill gave a brief report of the "Convention in Miniature" held on Sunday afternoon. Frances Maxwell announced that the tickets for the YWCA annual meeting and luncheon are now available. Miss Winnifred Wygal, a former national staff member will be the speaker for this meeting.

Next week the club will be shown a film, titled, "Marble of Today and Tomorrow" which promises to be very interesting. On the 29th an auction will be held and members are reminded to bring in items for this annual club event.

EXAMINING HOSTESS'S CHINA

Q: Is it ever proper when dining in someone's house, for a guest to turn one of the hostess's plates over to see what kind of china it is? I think it is very bad manners but a friend of mine thinks it is perfectly acceptable.

A: It is permissible only to a guest who is known to be interested in china or is somewhat of an expert on it, to turn a plate over, saying to the hostess as she does so, "love this china. It's Limoge, isn't it?"

Souvenirs to One's Friends

Q: My husband and I are sailing for Europe next week. Last Saturday a friend of ours gave a "going away" party for us and we received quite a few gifts. Are we obligated to bring back souvenirs for all those who gave us presents?

A: It is not an obligation, but if you are coming back by boat without the strict limitations of a plane, it will be generous of you and much appreciated by those who gave you going-away presents, if you brought back a little something for each of them. Don't, however, let your generosity carry you away in selecting souvenirs as the amount an individual may bring into this country duty free is only $100.

Smoking Manners

Q: Isn't it very bad manners to talk with a cigarette in one's mouth? My employer has a habit of talking to people with a cigarette dangling from the side of his mouth. What is your opinion on this?

A: To talk with a cigarette in one's mouth is indeed very bad manners.

Home Extension Service News

Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent submits the following article on keeping young: Rummaging through a stack of "too-important-to-throw-away" Family Life material we came across a carefully typewritten sheet containing some wise suggestions for those who are not as young as they once were but who don't want other people to know it. I guess this includes almost everybody, doesn't it?

We don't know who originated these suggestions so we can't give credit where credit is due. We're sorry about this because the author surely has great insight into human behavior. He has given each of us an opportunity to check up on ourselves so that we will be happier and easier for others to live with.

As you read the list check the items that need your special attention. If you are honest with yourself and make the effort to mend your ways you'll soon be rewarded by having a younger point-of-view. Good luck!

Think, Talk Young

If you want to seem younger than you are—

Don't wonder out loud what the younger generation is coming to, or cluck about how "silly" their enthusiasms are.

Don't turn down spur-of-the-moment invitations simply because it might rush you a little to get ready.

Don't keep comparing the way things are with the way they used to be, always trying to prove the old days were better in every way.

Find Cheerful Talk

Don't talk about sad things if you can possibly find a topic that will make cheerful conversation.

Refuse to go into detail about the state of your health when you are asked the innocent question, "How are you?"

Don't complain about the noise of children or get in a dither because a neighbor's cat or dog gets in your yard occasionally.

Don't talk about how old you feel.

Don't do more than you share of talking.

Share your enthusiasm with others only if they seem genuinely interested.

Find all you can to praise and admire in others, and try not to even think about others' shortcomings and faults.

Don't make conversation out of the things you don't like or that irritate you. And try to keep those things to a minimum.

Don't feel sorry for yourself when you are lonely. Instead, try to do something for someone who is lonelier or worse off than you are.

Don't spend more time remembering the past than in planning for the future.

Business & Professional Club of YWCA

Members of the B&P Club of the YWCA were privileged to hear E. Robert Johnson, executive director of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Johnson said that much of the work of the Association is done by the many volunteers who give so freely of their time. The sale of Christmas seals is their only source of income, 82 per cent of which remains in Ulster County, 12 per cent goes to the National Association and 6 per cent to the State. He said that while TB is greatly reduced it still exists and respiratory diseases such as chronic Bronchitis and Asthma show marked increase. The goal of the TB and Health Association is to keep people informed.

During the business session Helen Gill gave a brief report of the "Convention in Miniature" held on Sunday afternoon. Frances Maxwell announced that the tickets for the YWCA annual meeting and luncheon are now available. Miss Winnifred Wygal, a former national staff member will be the speaker for this meeting.

Next week the club will be shown a film, titled, "Marble of Today and Tomorrow" which promises to be very interesting. On the 29th an auction will be held and members are reminded to bring in items for this annual club event.

EXAMINING HOSTESS'S CHINA

Q: Is it ever proper when dining in someone's house, for a guest to turn one of the hostess's plates over to see what kind of china it is? I think it is very bad manners but a friend of mine thinks it is perfectly acceptable.

A: It is permissible only to a guest who is known to be interested in china or is somewhat of an expert on it to turn a plate over, saying to the hostess as she does so, "love this china. It's Limoge, isn't it?"

Souvenirs to One's Friends

Q: My husband and I are sailing for Europe next week. Last Saturday a friend of ours gave a "going away" party for us and we received quite a few gifts. Are we obligated to bring back souvenirs for all those who gave us presents?

A: It is not an obligation, but if you are coming back by boat without the strict limitations of a plane, it will be generous of you and much appreciated by those who gave you going away presents, if you brought back a little something for each of them. Don't, however, let your generosity carry you away in selecting souvenirs as the amount an individual may bring into this country duty free is only $100.

Smoking Manners

Q: Isn't it very bad manners to talk with a cigarette in one's mouth? My employer has a habit of talking to people with a cigarette dangling from the side of his mouth. What is your opinion on this?

A: To talk with a cigarette in one's mouth is indeed very bad manners.

Dear Abby . . .

She Learned a Lesson!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Over the past five years I have done so many favors for my neighbor I can't count them. I have kept her children weekends while she went on trips with her husband. I've been a free taxi service for her because she had no car. I've given her at least a dozen home permanents, and I have never asked her for one favor until yesterday. She sews well, so I asked her if she would help me make some kitchen curtains. I thought she would be glad to do the favor to repay me for some of my favors. She said she would, for 300 TRADING STAMPS! I went right out and bought some curtains. What do you think of that?

FLABBERGASTED

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: I think it was appropriately "curtains" for your friendship. Next time you do a friend a favor, don't assume it puts her in your debt, and you won't be flabbergasted.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the obvious favoritism shown for our first-born by his paternal grandmother. We lived with my in-laws when he was born, and my husband's mother went completely overboard about the child. When our second baby came along, Grandma was so partial to the first that we had to be constantly on our guard, so the little one would not be hurt. It's not my imagination, Abby, everybody notices it, and many have commented. She'll go all out for gifts for the big one, and gives the little one some cheap little trinket. I am mostly interested in having both children love their Grandma. Should I mention it to her? If so, how should I phrase it?

NAMELESS, NATURALLY

DEAR NAMELESS: Ask your husband to tell his mother what she is doing, perhaps unwittingly. YOU keep out of it. Eventually the children will make their own evaluation, on their own terms and in their own way.

DEAR ABBY: For the past two weeks a man has been calling my home. As soon as he hears my voice, he starts with a string of filthy questions. I hang up on him. Now when my phone rings I can tell that someone is on the other end, but he never says anything. He just ties up my line. Should I report this to the police, or to the telephone company?

NOT LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

DEAR NOT LOOKING: The next time he calls, send someone quickly to the neighbors and have them report it to both the telephone company and the police. If this can be done while he is still on your line, the call can be traced.

DEAR ABBY: What makes a pastor think he can stand in the pulpit and insult a member of his parish week after week, and get away with it? I have sat there, fighting back the tears while he has aimed his remarks directly to me and to me alone. He has done everything except mention my name. I am getting tired of this. What do you suggest?

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: There is an old saying, "If the shoe fits—wear it." Too many shoes fit. Perhaps you should do a little soul-searching.

Get it off your chest. For a personal unpublished reply write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Buy Quality Garden Tools

By MR. FIX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Ever notice the tools used by a good gardener who has been at it a few years?

He does not have one of everything stocked by the local hardware or garden supply shop. His tools are not new; they are old—slightly worn, but in good condition.

Purchase quality tools and they seldom will need replacing. Take care of what you own and it may last you indefinitely.

It's difficult to resist the dazzling display of garden tools put before you. Remember that most of them are variations of basic items. To begin with, get the ones you cannot do without.

Dig It

Tools for digging haven't changed much over the years. Get a spade, one with a square blade and a 27-inch handle.

When your budget permits, get yourself a spading fork. This makes turning and breaking up ground an easier job. Until you get one though, the spade will do.

When it comes to digging and transplanting small plants, a hand trowel is best. Buy a good one.

A shovel is not a substitute for a spade. It is available with either a short (27-inch) or long (4-foot) handle. It should not be used for digging, but for picking up loose material.

Cleaning Up

An iron rake is needed for cleaning up and for breaking up the soil before planting. A broom rake of either bamboo or steel is needed for lawn care, for cleaning up leaves and clippings.

The standard garden hoe with a plain 6-inch blade is used for cultivating, chopping lumps of earth and loosening weeds. Later you may want a pronged hoe, useful for getting in close to a plant when loosening the soil.

Once things start to grow, consider pruning tools. Pruning knives are good for thin twigs, but you will need pruning shears for thicker stems.

All of your tools will last longer if you keep them clean and sharp. Coat with oil before storing them.

Prevent Moisture

For many homeowners, moisture is public enemy number one. Here are some tips on protecting the inside of your home from the menace of moisture: keep your attic well ventilated; when bathing, allow moisture to escape through a door or window; eliminate plumbing leaks; install exhaust fan in kitchen; improve ventilation and humidity control in basement.

Steel Pails Versatile

Galvanized steel pails can be used for a wide variety of home and garden jobs. Simply wash or hose out the pail thoroughly after each use, particularly if it has been used to carry weed or insect killers.

Plans for The Rosette are available, showing how to build with or without fireplace, and also with or without the breezeway and garage.

Don't Guess

A primer or first coat of paint will cover approximately 550 square feet per gallon. The finish coat usually covers 600 square feet per gallon.

Don't Guess

Plans for The Rosette are available, showing how to build with or without fireplace, and also with or without the breezeway and garage.

Let me give you a little list of some of the things that make up this amazing small house: outside stone or brick chimney with fireplace; attractive open stairway to upper floor; beautiful picture bow window; full basement; 21-foot family kitchen; large family room; foyer with guest closet; all large bedrooms; two full baths. All this is a basic dimension of 24 by 30 feet.

You can see the entire list in the working drawings, and convince yourself: these drawings, by the way will also enable you to obtain firm estimates of the cost of construction, and they are also the same plans used for building the dwelling.

There are 720 square feet in the main living area, with a foundation dimension of 24 by 30 feet.

If you intend to build we suggest the plan of The Rosette draws its appeal from the tried and true cape type home that has been brought up to date with such features as roof overhang; a picture bow window; breezeway, and attached garage.

Inside, the work is that of an efficient home planner, who not only understands the wants and needs of today's average family. For example, you enter through a foyer instead of directly into the living room, which is a feature most people want, and a must in any New England house. The living room shows a wall separating it from the dining area. This, however, could be opened up in the event the owner likes open planning found in many new homes of today.

Moving on to the rear, we are amazed to find that the kitchen is 21 feet long, which prompts us to question the overall size of the house. We are assured that it is still only 24 by 30 feet; moving to the left, we walk into a large family room—family room?—That's right. You see, we have children and this room makes an ideal place for the family to gather and to play.

The second floor has two bedrooms which are definitely larger. The bigger of the two shows a walk-in closet with a built-in cedar wardrobe for storage of winter garments during the summer months. The other bedroom has a large sliding door closet. Both of these rooms are well appointed to the full bath with ceramic tiled shower. Note that the downstairs bath has a 300 by 60 inch tub.

Dear Abby . . . She Learned a Lesson!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Over the past five years I have done so many favors for my neighbor I can't count them. I have kept her children weekends while she went on trips with her husband. I've been a free taxi service for her because she had no car. I've given her at least a dozen home permanent, and I have never asked her for one favor until yesterday. She sews well, so I asked her if she would help me make some kitchen curtains. I thought she would be glad at the chance to repay me for some of my favors. She said she would, for 300 TRADING STAMPS! I went right out and bought some curtains. What do you think of that?

FLABBERGASTED

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: I think it was appropriately "curtains" for your friendship. Next time you do a friend a favor, don't assume it puts her in your debt, and you won't be flabbergasted.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the obvious favoritism shown for our first-born by his paternal grandmother. We lived with his in-laws when he was born, and my husband's mother went completely overboard about the child. When our second baby came along, Grandma was so partial to the first that we had to be constantly on our guard, so the little one would not be hurt. It's not my imagination, Abby, everybody notices it, and many have commented. She'll go all out for gifts for the big one, and gives the little one some cheap little trinket. I am mostly interested in having both children love their Grandma. Should I mention it to her? If so, how should I phrase it?

NAMELESS, NATURALLY

DEAR NAMELESS: Ask your husband to tell his mother what she is doing, perhaps unwittingly. YOU keep out of it. Eventually the children will make their own evaluation, on their own terms and in their own way.

DEAR ABBY: For the past two weeks a man has been calling my home. As soon as he hears my voice, he starts with a string of filthy questions. I hang up on him. Now when my phone rings I can tell that someone is on the other end, but he never says anything. He just ties up my line. Should I report this to the police, or to the telephone company?

NOT LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

DEAR NOT LOOKING: The next time he calls, send someone quickly to the neighbors and have them report it to both the telephone company and the police. If this can be done while he is still on your line, the call can be traced.

DEAR ABBY: What makes a pastor think he can stand in the pulpit and insult a member of his parish week after week, and get away with it? I have sat there, fighting back the tears while he has aimed his remarks directly to me and to me alone. He has done everything except mention my name. I am getting tired of this. What do you suggest?

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: There is an old saying, "If the shoe fits—wear it." Too many shoes fit. Perhaps you should do a little soul-searching.

Get it off your chest. For a personal unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

3-Bedroom Cape With Garage and Breezeway

Jerrie Mock Day

Columbus Salutes Record World Hop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It may be just Saturday everywhere else, but in Columbus it's Jerrie Mock Day.

Mrs. Mock became Friday night the first woman to fly solo around the world. She landed her single-engine Cessna at Port Columbus at 9:36 p.m., 29 days after takeoff. She descended into a throng of well-wishers.

Holding her daughter Valerie, 4, and flanked by husband, Russell, and sons Roger, 17, and Gary, 16, Mrs. Mock found herself short of words to express her reaction to the reception. "I should get my autograph here to talk for me," she said.

Visibly tired, Mrs. Mock, 38, seemed to hesitate a bit before proclaiming her trip "wonderful." She added, "I didn't get much sleep or food or anything."

Thousands of spectators crushed toward a flag-draped platform as state and city officials offered congratulations. A telegram from President Johnson was read over the loud-speaker system. Mayor Maynard Sensenbrenner made the proclamation formally designating Jerrie Mock Day.

Also on hand were Gov. James A. Rhodes and Air Force Gen. Richard Lasser, an old friend of the Mocks.

A representative from the Federal Aviation Agency announced that a medal for exceptional service to aviation will be presented to Mrs. Mock when she goes to Washington.

Her official aviation records are the women's speed record for around-the-world flight and the first globe-circling flight of her plane's weight class, 2,204 to 3,858 pounds.

The 5-foot, 105-pound pilot began the final stretch of her trip from Tucson, Ariz., Friday morning. She flew southward to El Paso, Tex., to pick up extra mileage needed for the sanctioning of around-the-world flight by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. She stopped at Bowling Green, Ky., for fuel and a candy bar before the final hop home.

Predicts Victory

so far shows 136 pledged, instructed, or favorable to Goldwater on the first ballot. It requires 655 for nomination.

Then Goldwater gently needed the editors, many of whom have discounted his chances on the basis of the New Hampshire and Illinois primaries.

"I'm beginning to know exactly how Harry Truman felt as he read the polls and the papers in 1948," he said.

From there he sailed into an assault on the Johnson administration.

At home, he said, the administration "is writing a record in pure, unadulterated red ink." "The more they talk, the more they spend," Goldwater said. "When the bills all come in, I am sure that we will have a very dangerous new deficit."

His central theme was the charge that the administration was "following a course of planned weakness, in hope that the Soviets can be sweet-talked into abandoning their goal of destroying our society."

"I feel that the best way to avoid war is to remain strong," Goldwater said.

National Park Service conservationists fear that lack of water could burn away the Everglades National Park.

Movie-Concert Is Scheduled Sunday At Jewish Center

Jewish Community Center President Seymour Werbaowsky announced today that a special movie-concert would be offered to adult members of the Center, Sunday, April 19 at 8 p. m. The movie-concert features Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and was filmed at the Tchaikovsky Conservatory in Moscow. The educational value of this film makes it ideal for all who like good music.

Selections featured by the Philharmonic are Dimitri Shostakovich's Seventh (Leningrad) Symphony and Aaron Copland's Billy the Kid ballet suite. Both Boris Pasternak and Dimitri Shostakovich appear in the film. An intermission feature will be Joseph N. Welch's comments on the responsibilities implicit in citizenship.

The program will start promptly at 8 p. m. and is open to all adult members of the Jewish Community Center. Children must be accompanied by a parent. There is no admission fee for this activity.

The Center hopes to present other movie-concerts in the near future that will include the New York Philharmonic conducted by Bernstein at the Venice International Music Festival and at the West Berlin Cultural Festival in 1960.

Liquor Industry

general manager of the New York State Publishers Association, said the question of a suit against the ban would be discussed at a meeting of the association's board next Wednesday.

Efforts to overturn other sections of the controversial legislation also may arise. For instance, many package store owners are unhappy about abolition of the distance requirement, which was 1,500 feet in New York City and 700 feet elsewhere in the state.

Kansas Law Blocked
Thomas Donovan, president of the Licensed Beverage Institute, which represents all phases of the liquor industry, pointed out that a Kansas law similar to New York's on liquor price-control had been blocked in the courts.

Donovan commented, "it would appear that a challenge to the New York law would be consistent with our position."

The Distilled Spirits Institute in Washington also declined to rule out a possible court test of some phases of the new law.

Robert W. Coyne, president of the institute, said in Washington that as a result of newspaper accounts of the law he had questions about the validity of some sections. But he added his organization had not analyzed the law thoroughly yet.

Distillers have complained that the provision requiring them to charge New York wholesalers the lowest national price was an unconstitutional interference with interstate commerce.

They also argued that, by requiring them to keep track of the prices of all of their products every day throughout the country, it would impose burdensome costs.

NASA Announces Name 100 Jurors Labor Pact for Cape, 2 Others

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A no-strike clause is included in a new three-year labor stabilization agreement signed to cover Cape Kennedy, the Merritt Island moonport and Patrick Air Force Base.

In announcing the mailing of the first newsletter and a listing of all 1964 committees to the membership today, John F. Schuehler, president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, also urged members to make reservations for the breakfast meeting next Wednesday morning at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

In referring to the breakfast meeting in the newsletter, Schuehler said the meeting is a real opportunity for members to participate in their Chamber of Commerce.

The newsletter also contained a copy of the tentative Chamber of Commerce budget for the fiscal year, starting May 1, 1964 and the new pamphlet explaining Kingston's Urban Renewal program.

Harry Kaprelian, chairman of the membership committee, also said that it is hoped that the work of 100 new or additional memberships will be reached by May 1.

4 Youths Arrested By Leeds Troopers

State Police at the Leeds substation in Greene County arrested four teenage boys in two public intoxication complaints early today within about two hours.

Troopers arrested Victor Alfred Dolan Jr., 19, and James Edward Meigs, 17, both of Tannersville, about 3:45 a. m. near the Embassy Club, Route 23 in the Town of Catskill. The youths were confined to the Greene County Jail in lieu of $50 bail each for their appearance later today before Peace Justice George Carl, Town of Catskill.

Earlier, about 1:30 a. m., they arrested Michael Gerkman, 18, of 2 Livingston Street, and William B. Kenney, 19, of 35 North Warren Street, both of Athens on identical charges at Cox's. The complaint was made by Chuckie's Restaurant, Rt. 9W, Coxsack. Troopers said the youths also were confined in the county jail in lieu of $100 bail each for their appearance before Peace Justice Paul Weddleton.

Critical Stage
"great dangers in health" as the flow of vital supplies in America's transportation arteries dried up.

Although the strike postponement doesn't expire until 12:01 a. m. next Saturday, Johnson has said it should be known definitely by Monday whether a voluntary settlement is possible in the long dispute over wages, job classifications and working conditions of some 200,000 rail employees.

Johnson has not said what steps he would take if the parties do not agree, but the implied Monday deadline was steady pressure on the talks. It also gives the President time to consider alternatives well in advance of the strike deadline.

His only other recourse to halt a strike would be to ask Congress for emergency legislation. The long dispute has exhausted all other delaying provisions of federal law.

Visiblity Near Zero
The twin-jet airliner took off from Beirut on the two-hour non-stop flight to Dhanran and ran into the sandstorm near the end of the 1,100-mile hop.

Visiblity was near zero when the plane began its approach for the nighttime landing, then overflew the airport near the Persian Gulf coast and went down 10 miles offshore. The plane was found during a massive air, land and sea search launched at dawn by U.S. and British Air Force jets and helicopters, private planes, and desert vehicles and ships.

Passengers were reported to include 25 Americans, 11 Saudis, four Lebanese, one Syrian, one Bahraini, one Jordanian and one Palestinian. The crew consisted of five Lebanese, one French and one Swiss.

Dhanran, a comparatively modern desert city, is the heart of Saudi Arabia's multimillion-dollar oil operator and the headquarters of the Arabian American Oil Co.

There is a large American colony in Dhanran connected with ARAMCO. Most employees live in the company complex, air-conditioned apartments and single dwellings, with company stores and entertainment facilities nearby.

Supervisors Go To College Site

The Ulster County Board of Supervisors were scheduled to visit the Stone Ridge site of the Community College this afternoon for an on-site inspection.

Abram F. Molyneux, chairman of the Board's College Committee, said that the supervisors would be accompanied by members of the Site and Facilities Committee of the Board of Trustees of the college, a representative of the engineering firm of Brinnier and Laros, Augustus Schrowang Associates, architects and Harry F. Edinger, director of Environmental Sanitation, of the Ulster County Department of Health.

The group was scheduled to leave the court house by bus at 1 p. m. and make an examination of the proposed college site. At a recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors, Chairman Molyneux suggested that a joint inspection of the site be made in an effort to iron out differences which apparently existed and have an on-site inspection of the facilities in an endeavor to speed up the construction program.

Ben Hecht Is Stricken Fatally

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Ben Hecht died in his apartment today, apparently of a heart attack. He was 70.

Hecht, a New Yorker, broke in as a newspaperman on the Chicago Journal in 1910 after finishing high school.

Later he was to write short stories, plays, novels, and motion picture scripts. Perhaps his best-known work was "The Front Page," a play about the newspaper business written in collaboration with Charles MacArthur in 1928.

Hecht was stricken in his apartment on West 67th Street in Manhattan.

His wife tried to save him with mouth-to-mouth respiration and police administered oxygen.

Is Reported Parolee
Police said Curtis was on parole from Poughkeepsie.

Patrolmen Edward Ortlieb and Richard Spaulding in their investigation of the East St. James collision, said Curtis was driving west on East St. James when his car struck the left front of a car owned by Joseph F. Nash, of 38½ East St. James, which was parked, facing east on that street near 38 E. St. James. They said the vehicle continued on, skidded to the left side of the road and struck a traffic control box in front of 742 Broadway, where it came to a stop.

It was there that the foot-chase began.

Meanwhile, Donald L. Sills, 36, of 20 Adams Street, paid a $5 fine in City Court when he admitted an illegal parking violation. He had been served with a warrant after failure to pay the original fine. Failure to pay the original fines can mean the difference between $1 and $5, police said.

speeding car passed over the railroad overpass near the interchange on Albany Avenue, it literally "flew" some 20 feet through the air. He said the station wagon collided with a parked car at Broadway and East St. James, continued some distance and came to a halt when it struck a traffic signal box.

The Saugerties officer said Curtis fled the car and headed through an alleyway near the J. H. Byrne Chevrolet Corp. at 731 Broadway. He gave chase and fired a warning shot. He said Curtis failed to heed the warning and tried to climb a fence off the alleyway. Vickery caught up with his man and grabbed him off the fence and placed him under arrest.

Jerrie Mock Day

Columbus Salutes Record World Hop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It may be just Saturday everywhere else, but in Columbus it's Jerrie Mock Day.

Mrs. Mock became Friday night the first woman to fly solo around the world. She landed her single-engine Cessna at Port Columbus at 9:36 p.m., 29 days after takeoff. She descended into a throng of well-wishers.

Holding her daughter Valerie, 4, and flanked by husband, Russell, and sons Roger, 17, and Gary, 16, Mrs. Mock found herself short of words to express her reaction to the reception.

"I should get my autopilot here to talk for me," she said. Visibly tired, Mrs. Mock, 38, seemed to hesitate a bit before proclaiming her trip "wonderful." She added, "I didn't get much sleep or food or anything."

Thousands of spectators crushed toward a flag-draped platform as state and city officials offered congratulations. A telegram from President Johnson was read over the loud-speaker system. Mayor Maynard Sensenbrenner made the proclamation formally designating Jerrie Mock Day.

Also on hand were Gov. James A. Rhodes and Air Force Gen. Richard L. Assister, an old friend of the Mocks.

A representative from the Federal Aviation Agency announced that a medal for exceptional service to aviation will be presented to Mrs. Mock when she goes to Washington.

Her official aviation records are the women's speed record for around-the-world flight and the first globe-circling flight of her plane's weight class, 2,204 to 3,858 pounds.

The 5-foot, 105-pound pilot began the final stretch of her trip from Tucson, Ariz., Friday morning. She flew southward to El Paso, Tex., to pick up extra mileage needed for the sanctioning of around-the-world flight by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. She stopped at Bowling Green, Ky., for fuel and a candy bar before the final hop home.

so far shows 136 pledged, instructed, or favorable to Goldwater on the first ballot. It requires 653 for nomination.

Then Goldwater gently needed the editors, many of whom have discounted his chances on the basis of the New Hampshire and Illinois primaries.

"I'm beginning to know exactly how Harry Truman felt as he read the polls and the papers in 1948," he said.

From there he sailed into an assault on the Johnson administration.

At home, he said, the administration "is writing a record in pure, unadulterated red ink."

"The more they talk trash, the more they spend," Goldwater said. "When the bills all come in, I am sure that we will have a very dangerous new deficit."

His central theme was the charge that the administration was "following a course of planned weakness, in hope that the Soviets can be sweet-talked into abandoning their goal of destroying our society."

"I feel that the best way to avoid war is to remain strong," Goldwater said.

Chamber Mails 1st Newsletter

In announcing the mailing of the first newsletter and a listing of all 1964 committees to the membership today, John F. Schuehler, president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, also urged members to make reservations for the breakfast meeting next Wednesday morning at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

In referring to the breakfast meeting in the newsletter, Schuehler said the meeting is a real opportunity for members to participate in their Chamber of Commerce.

The newsletter also contained a copy of the tentative Chamber of Commerce budget for the fiscal year, starting May 1, 1964, and the new pamphlet explaining Kingston's Urban Renewal program.

Harry Kaprelian, chairman of the membership committee, also said that it is hoped that the goal of 100 new or additional memberships will be reached by May 1.

Volts Quell Grass Fire

East Kingston volunteer firemen responded to a call at 4:50 p. m. Friday, and extinguished a brisk grass fire near the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge. Fire Chief James Costello said a booster hose, brooms and Indian tanks were used to quell the fire. He also said a brush fire in the Hudson River at the time volunteers battled the local fire.

Johnsons has not said what steps he would take if the parties do not agree, but the implied Monday deadline was viewed as an effort to keep steady pressure on the talks. It also gives the President time to consider alternatives well in advance of the strike deadline.

His only other recourse to halt a strike would be to ask Congress for emergency legislation. The long dispute has exhausted all other delaying provisions of federal law.

Although the strike postponement doesn't expire until 12:01 a. m. next Saturday, Johnson has said it should be known definitely by Monday whether a voluntary settlement is possible in the long dispute over wages, job classifications and working conditions of some 200,000 rail employees.

Caserto's One-Hitter, 19 Strikeouts Tops Rondout, 7-0 Tackle Shop Plays Bombardiers Sunday at Auditorium

New Paltz Club, Highland Also Win Shutouts

Lefty Vince Caserto fired a brilliant one-hitter and struck out 19 batters as Marlboro decided Rondout Valley, 7-0, in a UCAL game yesterday at the Stone Ridge diamond.

Shutouts prevailed in the other circuit tests as New Paltz stopped Pine Bush, 3-0, and Highland blanked Wallkill, 4-0.

Standings:

Team	Won	Lost
Ontario	1	0
Marlboro	1	0
Highland	1	0
New Paltz	1	0
Rondout	0	1
Wallkill	0	1
Pine Bush	0	1

Caserto, the outstanding chucker in the area, gave up a one-out first inning single to Chuck Schoonmaker and was then in complete command. Schoonmaker was the only batter to reach first base for the Ganders.

Proving he can use a bat as well as his arm, the stylish Caserto banged a three-run homer in the sixth inning to put the contest out of reach. The way Caserto was hurling, the first inning run Marlboro scored off loser Bill Botsakos would have been enough.

New Paltz scored three markers in the first two frames and made them stand up against Pine Bush. Bob Zacheo went the distance for the home side, allowing four singles. Dean Wood absorbed the setback.

The Hugenots collected five safeties and didn't score after the second inning.

Tom Gruner hurled a two-hitter for Highland. The lanky righty walked three and struck out nine. Highland scored twice in the first and fifth frames to capture the circuit triumph.

The golf show starts at 11 a. m. in the Empire Room. There will be displays of all 1964 Pro only golf merchandise by the leading manufacturers. This portion of the show will close at 7 p. m.

Starting at 12 noon in the hotel lobby, there will be an indoor Driving Net for all area golfers to have their golf swings analyzed by various golf professionals of the Northeastern section. Tom Creavy, professional at the Saratoga Spa Golf Club, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., will be chairman of this teaching phase.

In 1942, he annexed his second Masters title when he defeated his old rival, Ben Hogan, in a playoff. In 1944, he won 13 of 23 events he entered and was the leading money winner for the year with a record amount of $37,967.69 in War Bonds.

Out of the 38 tournaments held in 1945, Nelson played in 31, won 17 and was runner-up in seven. He won a string of 11 consecutive opens, a record which has never been approached. His average round for the year was another record, 68.33. He ended the year as the leading money winner again with another record of $63,335.66. Unfortunately, Nelson was at the zenith of his form during the war years when all USGA tournaments and the Masters were discontinued. In 1946, Lord Byron retired from the competitive grid after losing a three-way playoff for the U.S. Open title. He played on the U.S. Ryder Cup team in 1937 and 1947. No matches were played in the intervening years.

Tickets for the dinner may be purchased from the area golf pros: Alex Gerlak, Twaalfskill; Scotty Robertson, Wiltwyck; and J. Carson Hutchins, Woodstock.

O'Connor Bags Eagle—2

Hayman, Carnright Acers at Twaalfskill

Twaalfskill Club golfers accounted for a pair of holes-in-one and an eagle-2 in an unprecedented early season assault on the venerable midtown links Thursday.

Leo J. Hayman, of Lehen's Restaurant, scored a rare ace on the par-3 third hole. Attorney Robert Carnright of Saugerties aced the par-3 second hole and Joseph O'Connor, Rosendale business man, holed his second shot for an eagle-2 on the par-4 eighth hole.

Hayman's hole-in-one at the third hole may have been the first in the club's history and came under unusual circumstances. He hit to the green while the flagstick was out of the cup. The ball landed on the green rolled a few yards and disappeared into the cup.

The shot traveled about 200 yards, since Hayman's foursome was hitting from the lower tee on No. 3. Witnesses to the historic shot included Attorney James Connelly, Jake Berinato and Kenneth MacCallum.

Carnright's hole-in-one came on the second hole where numerous aces have been registered over the years. Witnesses to his perfect 9-iron shot were other members of his "fivesome," including Dr. Robert McCaig, Dr. Rodney Ball, Henry Hartley and Attorney Ernie Schirmer.

O'Connor holed out a 9-iron shot from about 50 yards on the 8th hole. His foursome included George Schneider, Chris Larion and Augustus Brinnier. The group had teed off from the lower tee on the par-4 hole.

AL Roundup Lamabe Hurls Boston To 4-1 Win Over Chisox

Lamabe held his own cause with a double and a single in three times at bat. His double touched off a two-run burst in the third inning. He scored as a rookie Dalton Jones tripled on a drive that handcuffed right fielder Floyd Robinson.

The 27-year-old Lamabe pitched the first complete game of his three-year major league career Friday, whipping the Chicago White Sox 4-1 on a five-hitter.

Following the game, the Red Sox found themselves searching for a relief pitcher to go with Dick Radatz. The right-handed Lamabe had the job last season after coming to Boston from Pittsburgh.

But now the victory over Chicago has catapulted him into the No. 2 starting assignment behind Bill Monbouquette.

"Lamabe didn't surprise me," Boston Manager John Pesky said after the game. "He's got a real strong arm and throws a lot of pitches, but he got stronger as the game went along. I thought his last four innings were real good."

Took Conley's Place

Lamabe, who pitched in more innings last year than Radatz, got the chance to start because Gene Conley is ailing. It was only the third time Lamabe ever had started a game, the other two coming in 1963.

While the Red Sox won their second game in two tries, Washington handed Minnesota its first loss after two victories, 4-3.

John Romano powered Cleveland to a 6-4 triumph over Kansas City. Baltimore nipped the New York Yankees 4-3 in 11 innings and the Los Angeles Angels whipped Detroit 8-3.

Wilt, Russell Duel Set Tonight

BOSTON (AP)—The war of the super centers—Bill Russell vs. Wilt Chamberlain—will be declared tonight when Boston launches its bid for a sixth straight National Basketball Association playoff title against San Francisco.

The Celtics, angered by nine days of idleness, are 3-1 favorites to wrap up their seventh world crown in eight years and 10-point picks for this opener of the best-of-seven series.

Russell, the 6-foot-10 defensive-rebounding genius, was the reason the Celtics made a surprisingly quick five-game kill of powerful Cincinnati in the Eastern Division finals.

Francisco, fresh from a 105-95 seventh-game conquest of St. Louis in the West, recognizes the Celtics' defensive skills and great bench says Coach Alex Hannum. "But we have Wilt," he adds.

The 7-foot-2 scorer is doing more feeding and rebounding than ever in his career.

Harry Scales Bird Wins Pigeon Race

A race will be run Sunday from Washington, D. C.

Curren-Albany Set to Collide In Cage Tourney

Ray's Tackle Shop, the best tournament club in the area, has the almost impossible task of beating the powerful Pine Plains Bombardiers Sunday night as action continues in the 11th annual Kingston Basketball tournament.

Ward Dunham's cagers will play Pine Plains in the 9 o'clock feature game at the Auditorium. In the 7:30 opener, Curren Lincoln-Mercury of New Rochelle meets the Albany Athletic Club with the loser being eliminated from the tourney.

The Tackle Shop has been impressive in scoring victories over the Albany IRA and Stony Point quintets. However, the big test will be against the Bombardiers.

A Great Collection

George Stuetzle, the stained glass expert from Pine Plains has rounded up one of the greatest collections of cage stars ever seen on a local court. In addition to the famed Nick Werkmann of Seton Hall, Stuetzle has Bill Telasky of George Washington; Tom Hannon of St. Bonaventure; Sonny Sunkett of Seton Hall and several Eastern league stars.

Against this all-star aggregation, the localities will send Joe Uhl, Ron Scheff, Bob Bondar, Chick Boice, Joe Klonowski, Ron Miller, Marty Kaye and Harry Pratt.

Ray's has to make a minimum of errors and Pine Plains has to have an unusually poor night if the Tackle Shop is to win this one. The task is almost insurmountable.

The opener pairs a couple of tournament tested clubs. Curren is favored to win, but only if the New Rochelle outfit can appear with a full squad.

Albany is defending its championship but the upstarters will be knocked right out of the competition if they lose this one. Sunday's doubleheader promises to be one of the best in the tournament and a good crowd is expected.

Four Share Lead With 139 Scores

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—A Spaniard and three U.S. stars shared the lead but big Jack Nicklaus, after a 10-stroke comeback, was back in contention in today's third round of the $50,000 Houston Golf Classic.

Ramon Sota of Spain was deadlocked at 139 with Don Januay, Billy Maxwell and Buster Cupit after 36 holes but Nicklaus was only three strokes off the pace after placing a five-under-par 66 beside his first-round 76.

"I didn't know any of the distances Thursday but those 10 strokes show I learned something," Nicklaus said, analyzing his 66.

"I used the wrong club at least a dozen times Thursday but picked up the wrong one only twice in the second round."

The four-way tie at the tournament's midway mark had already been established by the time Nicklaus, a late starter, came in with his 76-66-142 that left him at even par for the 7,233-yard, par 35-36-71 Sharpstown Country Club course. A 10-foot birdie putt on the 422-yard par 4 12th permitted Nicklaus to pull even with par but the comeback ended there and he closed the round with six par holes.

Nicklaus had no complaints about the wind but the four leaders said gusts that exceeded 30 miles an hour made the course quite difficult.

"The course played enormously long," said Januay after taking an early lead with the 73-66-139.

Maxwell, a former collegiate teammate of Januay's at North Texas State, had a par 71 after a first-round 68.

Jay Hurls Redsto Win Over LA

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Joey Jay won. Roger Craig didn't.

Jay and Craig, two of baseball's biggest losers last season with 40 losses attributed to their strong right arms, made their first starts of the National League season Friday night and neither came away a loser.

Jay, 7-18 with Cincinnati last season, was tagged for two homers but allowed only six hits in all as the Reds handed the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers their third consecutive loss, 7-3. It was Jay's first complete game since last Aug. 16.

Craig, who lost 18 straight and wound up with a 5-22 record for the New York Mets last year, pitched five innings of no-hit ball for St. Louis, but wasn't in the decision in the decision by the time the Cardinals were finished losing to San Francisco, 5-4 in 10 innings.

Craig was in a weirdie. Through five innings, he was untouchable, and when he left after seven innings he had allowed only three hits. Yet, he was trailing 4-3.

Jose Pagan started the sixth for the Giants with a walk, then pinch hitter Cap Peterson collected the first hit off Craig, a single to right. Matty Alou sacrificed the runners along before Chuck Hiller lined a single that brought in the first run.

4th for Willie

Then Craig made a big mistake, and Willie Mays hit a big homer, his fourth of the season 400 feet over the right center field fence.

Everything was being hit over the fence at Chicago, where Philadelphia outlasted the Cubs 16-8 in an eight-homer battle. Elsewhere, Frank Bolling's two homers led Milwaukee to a 5-2 victory over Houston and Willie Stargell rapped four hits as Pittsburgh spoiled the New York Mets' home opener in new Shea Stadium, 4-3.

Jay got just about all the support he needed from first baseman Deron Johnson, who homered, doubled, singled, scored three runs and drove in two. Vada Pinson also homered for the Reds while Leo Cardenas stroked three hits and batted in two runs. Ron Fairly and Tommy Davis homered for the Dodgers. The loser was Pete Richert.

The Phillies pulled ahead to stay in the fifth when starting pitcher Art Mahaffey hit a three-run homer and Richie Allen and Roy Sievers connected for consecutive shots, all off Dick Ellsworth. The Cubs fired a five-homer salvo, Billy Williams hitting a pair and Ron Santo, Lou Brock and Billy Cowan one each. Johnny Klippstein won it in relief.

making his first full swing of the pro tour, credited his 68 to "a lot of iron shots that turned pretty well." He had a par 71 opening round.

Difficulties on the final hole prevented Sota and Mike Souchak the 1955 classic champion, from taking the lead.

Express Rodney Beats Su Mac Lad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As the great Su Mac Lad faded in the stretch, Express Rodney poured on the speed Friday night to win the $25,000 Trader Horn Free-For-All trot at Roosevelt Raceway.

Jimmy Cruise drove Express Rodney to the surprise victory in 2:02 4/5. Dam Dandy was second. Porterhouse finished third. The winner paid $15.80. Su Mac Lad, top money winner in harness racing, tired badly in the stretch and wound up fourth in the five-horse field.

In racing action at Buffalo Raceway, Proud Yankee won the $25,000 invitational trot in 2:05 1/5 and paid $2.90. Del Manges drove. The winning time was 2:05 1/5. Bright Newport finished second and Crystal Newport, third.

Nordic Club Balked in Bid To Purchase Jumping Site

Revival of ski jumping in Rosendale has received a serious setback because of the asking price for the old Telemark Ski Jump site, Rosendale Nordic Ski Club officials announced.

The organization's ski jumping committee reported that $12,000 was offered to Miss Mae Simmons of Rosendale, who owns the site. She rejected that offer and is asking $35,000.

The Nordic Club has taken the setback in stride, however, and applied for two sanctioned cross country 15 kilometer races for 1965, one being the New York State Cross Country Championship, which has not been run since 1941, when last run by the Telemark Ski Club in Rosendale.

Continue Search
Club officials announced that while the breakdown of negotiations for the Telemark site is a serious setback, other locations in the village of Rosendale are being sought. In the meantime, the club plans to hold its cross country activity in Rosendale and jumping events at Bear Mountain until a jump is built in Rosendale, when suitable land can be acquired at a reasonable cost.

The Rosendale club has been admitted into membership in the Metropolitan Ski Jumping Committee, which should result in the club sponsoring ski jumps on a number of future dates, possibly to begin in 1966, as the 1965 schedule has already been set.

In addition to skiers, club membership is open to contributing memberships for the business people in the area, who wish to promote the town of Rosendale as a Nordic ski center, while not particularly desiring to become active in the club functions.

MISS AMELIA D. NAREL
West Hurley P-TA Will Elect Officers On Apr. 21; Guest Speaker Announced

MRS. JACK CLAIR (Freeman photo)

At the April 21st meeting of the West Hurley P-TA, Mrs. Ruth Clair, faculty member of the West Hurley School and well known area lecturer, will discuss the South Seas Cruise she took last summer aboard the S. S. Mariposa. The exciting trip lasted 42 days and carried its passengers to such enchanting ports of call as Bora Bora, Rarotonga, New Zealand, Australia, Noumea, Fiji, Neufou, Pago Pago and Hawaii. Everyone who has heard Mrs. Clair knows the program will be picturesque, informative and most enjoyable.

Prior to the program, a business meeting will be conducted at 8 p. m. by Mrs. Jody Collins, president. At that time, election of officers for the 1964-65 school year will be held. The nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Helen Schwartz, chairman and assisted by Mrs. Nieves Morse and Mrs. Ruth Heimsen proposes the following slate:

President, Mrs. Jody Collins; first vice president, Mrs. Sally Vilas; second vice president, Mrs. Helen Schwartz; recording secretary, Mrs. Lorraine Shults; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Florence Lamb; treasurer, Marlin Klingner.

Final plans will be announced for the country fair, this year's P-TA fund raising project to be held May 9, in case of rain on May 16. Those who have not been able as yet to volunteer their assistance to make the event a success, will be availed of the opportunity at this meeting or by contacting Mrs. Regina Robbins, ways and means chairman.

Public is invited, refreshments will be served after the program.

Local Library Has New Books Added; Annual Fair Set
The assistance of all West Hurley residents has been called for by the West Hurley Library in conjunction with the annual fair this summer.

The Library will need countless usable articles in order to make this sale a success. All donated items may be left at the library during its open hours or a telephone call will dispatch someone to pick up the articles.

Details for the fair will be announced. New books added to the shelves include the following: KFK—Man and the Myth; Lasky, Letters of Scott Fitzgerald; Turnbull, Managing Your Money; Lasser, Garbo, Billuist, Modern Family Guide to Education; Fine, Babies by Choice or by Chance; Guttmacher, American Way of Death; Mitford; Sirens Should be Seen and Not Heard; Gingold, Conventio; Kueler and Bailey, Island; Huxley, Come to the Bower; Bryon, Explosion in a Cathedral; Mark it and Shake it; Steve Allen, The Lighted Heart; Yates.

This is also Membership Month. A small fee includes the entire family and gives them access to an unlimited number of books every year.

FPC Puts Off Con-Ed Hearing On Orange Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission postponed Friday until May 4 a hearing on an application of Consolidated Edison Co. to build a hydroelectric project in the Hudson Highlands near Cornwall, N.Y.

The hearing had been scheduled for April 20. The commission said a conservation group requested more time to prepare data.

Following a hearing earlier this year, Commission Examiner Edward B. Marsh said the $130-million project would have little adverse effect upon the natural beauty of the Highlands.

It is estimated that more than 3 million persons play the organ today, as compared with only 800,000 in 1954.

Nordic Club Balked in Bid To Purchase Jumping Site

Revival of ski jumping in Rosendale has received a serious setback because of the asking price for the old Telemark Ski Jump site, Rosendale Nordic Ski Club officials announced.

The organization's ski jumping committee reported that $12,000 was offered to Miss Mae Simmons of Rosendale, who owns the site. She rejected that offer and is asking $35,000. The Nordic Club has taken the setback in stride, however, and applied for two sanctioned cross country 15 kilometer races for 1965, one being the New York State Cross Country Championship, which has not been run since 1941, when last run by the Telemark Ski Club in Rosendale.

At the April 21st meeting of the West Hurley P-TA, Mrs. Ruth Clair, faculty member of the West Hurley School and well known area lecturer, will discuss the South Seas Cruise she took last summer aboard the S. S. Mariposa. The exciting trip lasted 42 days and carried its passengers to such enchanting ports of call as Bora Bora, Rarotonga, New Zealand, Australia, Noumea, Fiji, Neuafoou, Pago Pago and Hawaii. Everyone who has heard Mrs. Clair knows the program will be picturesque, informative and most enjoyable.

Prior to the program, a business meeting will be conducted at 8 p. m. by Mrs. Jody Collins, president. At that time, election of officers for the 1964-65 school year will be held. The nominating committee consisting of Mrs.

Helen Schwartz, chairman and assisted by Mrs. Nieves Morse and Mrs. Ruth Heisman proposes the following slate:

President, Mrs. Jody Collins; first vice president, Mrs. Sally Vilas; second vice president, Mrs. Helen Schwartz; recording secretary, Mrs. Lorraine Shultis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Florence Lamb; treasurer, Marlin Klingler.

Final plans will be announced for the country fair, this year's P-TA fund raising project to be held May 9, in case of rain on May 16. Those who have not been able as yet to volunteer their assistance to make the event a success, will be availed of the opportunity at this meeting or by contacting Mrs. Regina Robbins, ways and means chairman.

Public is invited, refreshments will be served after the program.

Local Library Has New Books Added; Annual Fair Set

The assistance of all West Hurley residents has been called for by the West Hurley Library in conjunction with the annual fair this summer.

The Library will need countless usable articles in order to make this sale a success. All donated items may be left at the library during its open hours or a telephone call will dispatch someone to pick up the articles. Details for the fair will be announced.

New books added to the shelves include the following: KFK — Man and the Myth; Lasky, Letters of Scott Fitzgerald; Turnbull, Managing Your Money; Lasser, Garbo, Billie; Modern Family Guide to Education; Fine, Babies by Choice or by Chance; Guttmacher, American Way of Death; Mitford; Sirens Should be Seen and Not Heard; Gindgold, Conventio; Kuebel and Bailey, Island; Huxley, Come to the Bower; Bryon, Explosion in a Cathedral; Mark it and Shake it; Steve Allen, The Lighted Heart; Yates.

This is also Membership Month. A small fee includes the entire family and gives them access to an unlimited number of books every year.

Paul Bierwisch, fourth grade teacher at the West Hurley School, has received a scholarship for an eight-week summer course at the University of Minnesota.

He will take a course in the study of German which is designed to increase proficiency in the German language, give instruction in teaching skills and methods, demonstrate the use of modern instructional devices, and introduce a wide variety of instructional materials.

FPC Puts Off Con-Ed Hearing On Orange Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission postponed Friday until May 4 a hearing on an application of Consolidated Edison Co. to build a hydroelectric project in the Hudson Highlands near Cornwall, N.Y.

The hearing had been scheduled for April 20. The commission said a conservation group requested more time to prepare data.

Following a hearing earlier this year, Commission Examiner Edward B. Marsh said the $130-million project would have little adverse effect upon the natural beauty of the Highlands.

It is estimated that more than 3 million persons play the organ today, as compared with only 800,000 in 1954.
